

PRESS RELEASE

21st November 2017

Satellite MPR, the specialist built environment PR agency, continues to grow with two new appointments.

Satellite MPR has welcomed two new members of the team - account executive Susanna Annesley, and consultant and copywriter Jane Spence.

Susanna has hit the ground at full tilt, working with clients across the board. With a doctorate in history and a passion for all aspects of the built environment, Susanna brings to the business huge knowledge, an aptitude for data analysis and rigour in research, and a wealth of client-facing experience.

A Cambridge MA in archaeology and English, Jane studied history of art and architecture in Italy and is an award-winning PR consultant and journalist. With a background spanning newspapers, broadcast, media relations and corporate communications, Jane has been a producer/director on BBC and Channel 4 flagship programmes including 'Newsnight', 'Today', 'Dispatches', "Countryfile" and "The Money Programme". Jane is also an LL.B and has an interest in planning law, having undergone solicitor training.

Welcoming the new recruits, Satellite Founder and MD Claire Lalaguna said: "I'm happy to say that our reputation as the PR agency for the built environment means we attract high calibre professionals with the expertise and desire to work in this very exciting and complex sector."

- ENDS -

Enquiries to:

Claire Lalaguna @Satellite MPR
+ 44 (0)1394 384 040/ 07973 314 594
claire@satellitempr.com

Notes to the editor:

Images:

Credit: John Ferguson

Satellite Marketing and Public Relations:

Satellite MPR is a highly-specialised niche agency that has worked exclusively for the built environment sector since 1996. It provides strategic marketing and public relations expertise to leading practitioners in architecture, development, engineering and construction. It remains the go-to specialist for the built-environment industry, providing a full communications service.

www.satellitempr.com